LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Cambridge, Massachusetts
February 10, 1947

Dear Mohrenschildt and Karpovich:

After years of pleasant association with you in editing The Russian Review it is with regret that I feel obliged to offer my resignation as Editor. Steady and increasing pressure of work from various sources makes it impossible for me to devote sufficient time to The Review to fulfill adequately the function of an editor.

I have always felt, and still feel, that The Russian Review has an important rôle to play as an objective interpreter of Russia, past and present, and of Russian life and culture. I wish you both the utmost success in carrying on the magazine and making Russia, in all its forms of expression, more familiar to American readers.

Sincerely yours,

/S/ William Henry Chamberlin

In accepting regretfully Mr. Chamberlin's resignation, the editors of The Russian Review wish to take this occasion to express their deep appreciation for his help in launching the Review and for the years of most pleasant and fruitful collaboration.

A Russian Reference Grammar

By FRANCIS J. WHITFIELD

"The aim of the author is to supplement the elementary grammar which beginners learn in the normal primer by a more systematic exposition of the inflections of nouns, adjectives, numerals, and verbs. Particular care has been given to the rules governing accentuation and there are appendices on the use of cases and of tenses and moods. This is emphatically a reference work for use by advanced students, and will throw a good deal of light on difficulties which the beginner must pass over. There is, too, a valuable section in which the complexities of Russian pronunciation are clearly presented with a careful phonetic transcription."—Times Educational Supplement, London. $2.50.
